Fukushima March 11 Memorial Park

Mourning... A Journey through Remembering, Recovering, and Rejuvenating

The Fukushima March 11 Memorial Park was established by Fukushima Prefecture and the national government of Japan as a place to mourn and pray for the victims of the Great East Japan Earthquake of March 11, 2011.

At 2:46 p.m. on March 11, 2011, the strongest earthquake ever recorded in the country struck off the northeastern coast of Japan. It was followed by a devastating tsunami. The coastal areas of Iwate, Miyagi, and Fukushima prefectures were among the hardest hit. In Fukushima, the disaster was compounded by severe damage to nuclear power reactors. The recovery from this crisis continues even now. The Fukushima March 11 Memorial Park was created as a place to mourn and pray for the victims, to preserve the memories and lessons of the disaster, and to communicate the story of ongoing revitalization efforts to the world. It stands as both a site of remembrance and a symbol of determination for the future.

Park Zones

(A) Multipurpose Field

A three-hectare turf field used for various events and activities.

(B) Nakano Settlement

The remains of a settlement that was evacuated after the earthquake, tsunami, and resulting nuclear power reactor accident.

(C) Cherry Tree Hill

This area is home to a plantation of cherry trees, including the endemic Oshima cherry (Cerasus speciosa).

(D) Dangoyama Knoll

This small, rounded hill was a local landmark known as Dangoyama (literally, "rice dumpling mountain").

(E) National Memorial Hall

The top of the memorial hall provides panoramic views, and signage indicates the direction of the earthquake's epicenter. Nestled inside the base of the hall is a

(F) Morotake Settlement

A new rural landscape is being fostered here, remembering the former settlement through earth mounds that mark where houses once stood.

(G) Waterside Area

tranquil space for reflection and prayer. The memorial hall is accessible on foot via a bridge from the memorial museum.

(H) Waterside Area

The earthquake caused the land here to subside, forming a wetland. This area has been left untouched to observe how the environment changes naturally over time.

Facilities in the park

Visitor facilities

(1) Administration Office
The park administration office provides information and a resting space for visitors.

(2) Altar for Flower Offerings
Halfway up the path to the National Memorial Hall an altar is placed with a view of the sea, at which people may offer flowers.

Spots of interest

(3) Masuda Bridge
From this bridge, itself a survivor of the disaster, the remains of the Nakano settlement are visible.

(4) Severely Damaged Road Surface
The twisted and cracked road surface testifies to the force of the disaster.

Facilities outside the park

Visitor facilities

(5) The Great East Japan Earthquake and Nuclear Disaster Memorial Museum
The museum provides information about the disaster and recovery efforts.

(6) Futaba Business Incubation and Community Center (F-BICC)
The community center houses meeting rooms, a food court, and shops.

Spots of interest

(7) Marine House Futaba
Although the building was nearly destroyed by the tsunami, it saved lives when evacuees took refuge on its third floor. (Off-limits.)

(8) Suwa Shrine
On the night of the earthquake, local residents sheltered overnight within the shrine's compound.

(9) Remains of the earthquake Namie Town Ukedo Elementary School
The damaged buildings of the elementary school are used as a visitor center.
